A few days ago I came across this name in a musical paper - Ivan Donoiewski. Whom think ye that he is who is said to be about to bear it? Why, none other than our friend, Mr. John Dunn, Of course, I give no guarantee for the truth of the story. But there is no doubt we very patriotic English folk do think infinitely more highly of a foreign fiddler than of a native. The head of one of the largest music-publishers in the world once told me himself that violin music bearing an English composer s name was quite an unmarketable commodity; and in proof of his statement he added that he had tried the experiment by publishing pieces that he knew to be good, which contained the germs of popularity with a foreign looking variant of the English composers patronymic, while similar works for other instruments or the...
